Donald Fleming Impressive as One-Eyed Man Among Blind

his capacity for sheer hard work, Donald Methuen Fleming should have turned out to be the best Finance Minister Canada ever had. Instead, he became both the chief victim and the agent provocateur of John Diefenbaker's picaresque fiscal ad-

During the five contentious years he spent as Canada's minister of finance, Fleming appeared to be the most formidable member of the Tory cabinet, beating off the impious assaults of political opponents like a Salvation Army major decrying the taunts of street-corner drunks. But all the time, this show of besieged righteousness was really the mask for a betrayal of the financial orthodoxy that was the most cherished of his political beliefs.

Even in a cabinet where conflict between ideals and expediency was regarded as a sign of weakness, Fleming stood out as a man who compromised his principles.

The minister of finance is normally closer to the prime minister than any other member of the cabinet, enjoying a kind of veto power over the spending plans of all government departments. Under Diefenbaker, Fleming never achieved this status. He was constantly overruled and frequently not even informed ahead of time about new major spending proposals. Rather than insist on his prerogative, he failed to exercise it, and so lost it altogether.

The dimensions of Fleming's surrender were impres sive. He served as minister of finance for 1,874 days and tabled seven budgets. The federal revenues collected during his tenure amounted to just over $32 billions, while expenditures totalled just over $35 billions. This fact means that Fleming was responsible for spending an average of $1.56 millions more per day than he was taking in—a record in peacetime deficit financing not surpassed even during the Depression of the '30s. (Between 1931 and 1939 the federal government's daily deficit with the disapproving eye of a parsimonious club steward, and was known to argue with members of his office staff over ten-dollar expense accounts. The dichotomy between his nature and his performance gave rise to a verbal rumpus over Fleming's qualities, both as a man and as a

He was admired in his department for his knowledge and addiction to work and won the respect of delegates at the many international conferences where he represented Canada. One senior Bank of England official, who had dealt with many of Diefenbaker's ministers, once remarked in private conversation, "I am impressed by Mr. Fleming, as a one-eyed man impresses one in the world of the blind."

A churky-shouldered, compact man with a Napoleonic gait that expressed his determination to deal with all obstacles in fearless collision, Fleming consecrated ritualistic energy to his work, denying himself the release of total relaxation. He eschewed alcohol and tobacco and rarely entered into irrelevant pleasures of any kind.

"May I say very humbly," he told the Commons at the close of his first budget speech, "that 17 to 18 hours' work per day and a hundred hours' work per week are an insignificant price to pay for the high privilege of serving Canada." The remarks prompted James Sinclair, then Liberal financial critic, to whisper, "If conceit is the small man's sword, Don's the best-armed man in Canada."

Whether or not Fleming actually had a sense of ner, it usually remained buried in his preoccupation with detail. During the 1955 convention of the Canadian Bar Association, to which he was a delegate, Fleming atood up before a subcommittee of 200 lawyers and argued against a proposal for changing the Canada Evidence Act, on the grounds that a semi-colon had been omitted.

Fleming also possessed a limitless faculty for self-delusion. He was able to believe only what he wanted to believe, and would never admit to having been wrong about anything. When political circumstances changed, Fleming would simply execute a complete turnabout in positions, then defend his newly acquired stand with exactly the same pious vigor he had previously expended on the vindication of diametrically opposed ideas.

Such vehemence seemed to be based on Fleming's conviction that he could, by definition, never find himself on the wrong side of any argument.

Fleming's dogged opposition to the British application for Common Market membership, the unhappy results of the 1958 conversion loan he sponsored, the unexpected size of his deficits despite his painful dedication to bal-anced budgeting, the way he handled the Coyne affair in 1961, the sudden mid-campaign dollar devaluation of 1962—these and many other issues that left his judgment at least open to question were defended by the finance minister with a savage fury that obliterated any admis-sion of even the possibility of the slightest error.

"Don Fleming doesn't just fight an issue," the late Austin Cross, a veteran Parliament Hill observer for the Ottawa Citizen, once remarked. "He beats it to death. Then cuts its throat, slashes its wrists, throws acid in its face, and sets fire to it."

Donald Fleming was the epitome of the right-wing Tory. He regarded the NDP/CCF as an utterly irresponsible movement, and liked to boast that "there is no creeping republicanism in the Conservative party."

Fleming's political ideology was easy to classify, but his fiscal philosophy was less clearly definable. It seemed his fiscal philosophy was less clearly definable. It seemed to begin and end with his Holy Grail attitude toward the desirability of having federal budgets that are exactly balanced—no surpluses, no deficits. In effect, this meant that Fleming spent the Diefenbaker Years vainly attempting to set limits on the politically motivated spending plans of his cabinet colleagues.

Probably the main reason he falled was that in trying to block higher spending requests, he and his officials seldom offered alternative methods for stimulating the economy. Faced by the two main factions in cabinetthe ministers advocating higher welfare benefits and those urging the adoption of industrial and development incentives to stimulate private capital investment -- Fleming came down against both sides, since their ideas ran counter to his hallowed objective of balancing the budget.

As a result, budget-making under Fleming returned to the concept that the government only taxed to raise funds. The combination of the ever-mounting financial commitments made by the Diefenbaker cabinet and his own continued avowal of balanced budgeting never allowed Fleming to use taxation in its more imaginative application, as an instrument for modifying the nation's ec

When he was trying to repair his cabinet following the massacre of the 1962 election, Diefenbaker realized that the one absolutely essential move was to replace Fleming at Finance. He transferred him to Justice, dis-placing Davie Fulton, and moved the amiable George Nowlan into the senior fiscal post.

Donald Fleming's loyalty to the Chief was unflagging through the party crisis that climaxed in the dissolution of Parliament on Feb. 5, 1963. But at about this time, his taste for politics was blunted by a family tragedy, and on Feb. 18, 1963, he dictated a five-paragraph letter to the Prime Minister, tendering his resignation. "The time has come," he wrote, "when the exactions and sacrifices imposed by public service are too heavy to be continued."

A Hopeful Start

FIRST GLIMPSES OF WHAT IS hoped to be a rational redevelopment of Canada's railway services were given by Transport Min-ister McIlraith in a resolution in-troduced last week in the Commons.

The initial reaction to the resolution is that streamlining the rail-ways, making them the vital, economically sound links in the na-tional transportation field that they should be, is going to be both an expensive and intricate operation. A large part of the task, inevitably, is going to involve curtailment and cancellation of the railways' present unprofitable services with conse-quent repercussions in numerous large and small communities throughout the country.

It is encouraging to note that the government has apparently acthe government has apparently accepted the central argument of the MacPherson Royal Commission findings that efficiency through competition should be the policy in bringing railway operations into line with the rest of the national transportation industry. Just how Mr. McIlraith intends to handle competition as it affects the present complicated freight rate situation, he has not yet indicated. He has said, however, that a minimum of government interference is the goal which the government seeks.

The first steps to be taken in the streamlining job will be the progressive abandonment of unprofitable branch line operations, which have proved to be one of the most serious drains on railway

All unprofitable passenger serv-ice operations will be progressively cancelled as well. This, too, should result in cutting off heavy losses for the railways and, through sub-sides, for the taxpayers.

While the first-year cost of Mr. McIlraith's program is estimated at nearly $100 millions, it should be recognized that this is just about what the government is now paying out in subsidies and that the program is designed so that the cost will be substantially reduced year-by-year until the railways are

Over the years the Canadian ansportation system has become completely distorted economically through make - shift 'arrangements between government and the railways. The fact that a government at last has plans for tackling the problem on a long-range basis gives hope that most of this distortion can at last be removed and competitive forces be allowed to play their roles in determining transpor-

Let that event be exploited and we can choose up sides and take to the Plains of Abraham. This, at least, would aggravate the division in our nation which seems to be a major purpose of the

There are other shrines — wooden tries one what the way and the mood of a pods or piles of stone adorned with flowers — to commemorate refugees who died as they tried to climb the wall under the bullets of the guards.

Here and there wooden stands have more than prisoners with a 12-hour daily parole; they leave their small prison area only to enter the larger one that is the rest of East Berlin. Here and there wooden stands have been built, where West Berliners can mount the steps to see over The Wall —perhaps to catch a glimpse of a friend or relative. In some such places, with incredibly petty malice, the Eastern authorities have erected clumsy board hoardings a few yards away to block At the famous Brandenburg Gate a stream of sightseers looks across into the deadly stillness and vacuity of the Eastern side. The great winged figure atop the gate strides into the East and holds aloft a circular wreath. Once the wreath was centered by the old imperial cagle. That was removed by order of the Russians, Now West Berliners grin a trifle sourly as they explain that the figure is looking through a magnifying glass trying to find freedom in the Rus-

ing. Cars are a rarity, compared with the Western side's teeming traffic. The sidewalks — even on a Sunday afternoon when Berliners traditionally throng their thoroughfares — are almost deserted. The rubble-strewn gaps ng the buildings, still to be seen in West Berlin, are here more frequent and more desolate-looking.

Only the highly-touted Karl Marx Allee, the wide, half-mile avenue lined by the Russians with garish, white-tiled the control of the state and the state of the st Moscow architecture, shows real evidence of a reconstruction program. Its Russian, wedding-cake prettiness is said to be hated by the Germans and certainly seemed to be shunned by them. Even the rubble, honorable though grim, was preferable.

Two memories in particular remain of The Wall. One is the face of a man on the Eastern side, gazing across the distant barbed wire toward freedom, family, career—who knows what?—now smashed and gone and unattainable, perhaps forever other is the sound of the Western church bells which floated out over The Wall as we turned away-an incongruous call to worship in this place

President Johnson must try to solve.

To begin with the least unexpected but most important result, President Johnson still has the same grave handi-cap that doomed his bid for the Presidential nomination in 1960. As all poli-tical buffs will recall, this was his ap-parent lack of any popular following in the big industrial states:

Thus in Pennsylvania, for instance, the then Governor David Lawrence, was the then Governor David Lawrence, was Johnson's warm friend and admirer. Other things being equal, Lawrence would certainly have preferred to throw the Pennsylvania' delegation to Johnson. New Schools Needed

I have always been puzzled by the striking difference between the schools in the old neighborhoods and the ones in the suburbs. They may be under the jurisdiction of the same school board, but that is the only thing they have in

As a child's first school experiences are the most important, it behooves us to really look at our three oldest elementary schools: North Ward, Beacon Hill and South Park. Of the three, I think that North Ward is the worst and a disgrace to us. And I do not think we can excuse our neglect of the children who live in these areas by explositions. live in these areas by saying that every city has its old and new schools.

I also wish it to be understood that my remarks only concern the school plant, and have nothing to do with the teach-ing staff who do the best they can.

I understand that a new school con struction referendum is being planned for the spring of 1964. At least, North Ward's replacement should be included, but not on its present site. A new school should be considered as a part of the Blanshard redevelopment which was recommended to the Victoria City Council in Nov., 1961, by the Capital Regional Planning Board. It seems to me that this depressed area merits at least as much attention as the gravel which is exciting so much interest at the roundaby roundabout.

So What for an Anthem?

Why clamor for the acceptance of "O Canada" as our national anthem when it really ought to be thrown on the scrap heap of social prejudice?

To me, "O Canada" has no real Canadian flavor or patriotism in any of the control of the scrape of three versions. We must put aside our "English and French" prejudices and take up the true Canadianism instead. We need an anthem that will diseard the "true-blue" fanaticism of England and the "fleur-de-lis" effect of Quebec, Let these disjointed factions become true Ca-nadians instead of Britishers and French-

... REPORTING

OTTAWA-An educated guess is that up to $50 millions may be "saved" in the de-fence department's new cost-pruning pro-gram. But I'm told that despite this "sav-ing," no reduction is planned in the amount of money to be budgeted for defence next

The closing of certain defence depots the decision not to produce "Bobcat" troop car-riers, and a 40 per cent cut in militia strength were announced by Defence Minister Hellyer last week along with other econ-omies. But Mr. Hellyer plans to use the money so saved to buy new weapons and equipment, so next year's defence budget total will be about the same as the current budget of $1,590 millions.

The fact is that under the Conservative ministration the standard of the forces' equipment was allowed to deteriorate. Of this year's defence budget, prepared by the former government, only 17 per cent is ear-marked for the purchase of new weaponry. This compares with 25 to 30 per cent for the United States forces, 30 per cent for British forces, and 50 per cent for French

This situation underlies the quip, heard in military circles, that the Canadian forces are the best paid, best fed, best housed-and poorest equipped of any in NATO.

What Mr. Hellyer and his associate minister, Lucien Cardin, are trying to do is squeeze enough water out of the defence budget to re-equip the forces over a planned period, without any net increase in defence

Mr. Cardin's role in this should not be In the division of responsibility between the two ministers, Cardin bears the main burden of administration, of evaluating and assessing methods, installations, and defence housekeeping generally. division is intended to leave Mr. Hellyer free to concentrate on matters of policy. So, while Mr. Hellyer announced the costsaving decisions, it was mainly Mr. Cardin who made them.

They are also courageous decisions, involving political risk for the government in areas where the closing of a base, however unnecessary that base may be for defence purposes, harms the local economy and wounds local pride. One such is the Point Edward naval base at Sydney, N.S., should have been closed years ago if defence requirements were the only consideration. Another is the withdrawal of the army from Fort Churchill, Man,, leaving only the rocketry establishment there.

The implication in these announcements is that Paul Hellyer has made a basic policy decision. It is that defence dollars shall be used for defence, and not for propping up the economies of distressed areas.

* * * This is good. Defence is one problem, and the economic difficulties of certain areas is another. Both require government ac-tion. But we should not maintain an esseneconomic activity under the guise of a defence operation, because then we tend to deceive ourselves as to the effectiveness of our defences.

The other week Newsweek featured an article entitled "China—Paper Dragon?" Militarily Canada is no dragon—but the question "paper defences?" can legitimately be asked when governments show, as they have in the past excessive concern for the have in the past, excessive concern for the economic and political effects of spending the tax dollars we contribute to defend the way of life is the rapidly expanding production of synthetic furs. Consider, if you please, these frenchant paragraphs that I plucked from a fashion column published by the National Institute of Dry Cleaning: There is such a demand for simulated furs that the animals in the fake fur jungle are getting scarce. Manufacturers are really safari to fill consumer demands . . "Leopard is king of beasts in this year's fake fur jungle, but jaguar, ocelot, civet and snow leopard are close behind. Others that are popular are make-believe zebra, tiger, pony, calf, baranduki, otter, broadtail, mou ton, mink, seal, chinchilla."

The program involves massive investment—the equivalent of $46,000,000,000—in the chemical industry in a seven-year pian. This cure-all proposal to attack agriculture's ailments and begin providing the people with adequate supplies of both food and consumer goods in all likelihood will require cuts in heavy industry investment.

I personally never heard of anyone wear ing artificial pony fur and I couldn't even find "baranduki" in my dictionary. Never-theless, it hardly need be pointed out that the situation described above bodes no good for fur-bearing animals.

As simulated furs become more popular, a lot of minks and chinchillas are going to be thrown out of work. And in most cases, bearing fur is all they know how to do.

Civets probably can pick up odd jobs in the perfume industry, but the other animals will be up the creek. Particularly the otters.

Before the world becomes overrun with temployed ocelots, it seems to me that steps should be taken to retrain furry mam-mals in other skills and crafts.

If leopards and zebras, for instance, could be taught to lay spotted and striped eggs they could make a killing at Easter.

A program of self-help also should be encouraged. Possibly the seals could give the jaguars juggling lessons. Which would get them on the Ed Sullivan show.

If that doesn't prevent the forest primeval becoming a depressed area, then perhaps the animals can start growing artificial

Czechs and Canadians Shouldn't Run Out of Gas

Two of the most carefully honed hockey teams in the world will step onto Memorial Arena ice next week.

Clashing Dec. 18 in a preview of one of the games in the 1964 Olympic tournament at Innsbruck, Austria, late next month will be the Czechoslovakian national team and Canada's Olympic squad, both expected to finish in the top four in the battle among 16 countries for world amateur hockey supremacy.

against the U.S. Olympic club. For the Canadians, it will be the start of the final phase of training for a daring bid to restore the country's hockey prestige in international competition.

The story of the Canadian Olympians is known to most hockey fans in the Dominion, Assembled and coached by Father David Bauer, they are mostly university students or recent graduates, a striking change from the collection of travel-worn amateurs and rein-stated professionals who represented Canada in world events for many years.

It will, Father Bauer hopes, be a team that will do much to polish up Canada's somewhat tarnished hockey image abroad, both on and off the-lees

Dedicated to their task, the Olympians opened their training at Edmonton last August, moved to the coast when classes started and ice became available at University of British Columbia.

Given the use of an old RCAF hut, they painted and patched their quarters, hammered together make-shift furniture, ignored inadequate plumbing and endured their wn cooking and housework Conditions have improved for the Olympians in the past two months, but they have continued to cram in as much training as studies will permit.

When ice wasn't available, they headed for gymnasiums and outdoor fields. They have played amateur and minor pro-fessional teams in exhibitions that took them from Victoria to Winnipeg.

They are about as well con-ditioned as dedicated training and the inspiration of Father Bauer can make them. Now they are about to learn how they compare with one of the teams they hope to beat in Tackling the veteran Czechs is a formidable task for the young Canadians. times tested in international battles, the Czechs got an even earlier training start than did the UBC Olympians.

After getting the help of 2,327 coaches in screening the 97,000 Czech athletes who play hockey, national coach Jiri Anton began last spring to put selected players through a gruelling program of pre-Olympic training.

During early summer, they went back to their own clubs to continue training. They labored on the running track, the soccer field, the gymnasium and in the swimming pool as each aimed for the all-round fitness which Czech players are the training tempo. Unable to keep up the fitness pace were former international stars like Jank Kasper, Jano Starsi and Ludek Mukac. But still in the running when Anton trimmed his squad to 30 men last month were such veterans as team captain Vlastimil Bubnik, 32; Miroslov Vlach, 28; Josef Golonka, 25, and Vladimir Nadrchal, 25.

With the kind of training they have behind them, neither club is going to run out of gas.

Hal Malone LOOKS AT SPORTS

Mr. Wallace Milligan, the merry old soul from Edinburgh or Goteborg or Tipperary (one of those fine Scottish places), was pretty high late Saturday

His Victoria United had just come off the frozen plains of Royal Athletic Park with a 4-2 Pacific Coast Soccer League triumph.

In the dressing room the players seemed content, momentarily, to sag heavily against the wall as if it might absorb some of their weari-

George Paul was tried for conversation. This was a mistake. He and Milligan come from the same haggis cen-

A Day to Savor-with Barry's Grace

This had been a rare afternoon for Paul. Two goals in the basket. And, as he said, "a dozen down the drain." If you were to ask him where he plays he would say forward. And Milligan would second the motion. Others shudder when he gets in scoring position.

In the last two years he has not exhibited the scoring habits of a Jimmy Greaves or a Dennis Law. In 1961-62 l poured home four goals. Same thing last year. Milligan insists there are few better team men and since he is intensely loyal, Paul has played often though not often This year in 10 games he has four goals. With a dozen games left he may do all sorts of crazy things like breaking his own scoring mark. But the fact remains he is no Dave Stothard or Geoff Hill. Mr. Milligan has Paul at centre-forward, where no less

Three victories and three draws in 10 outings is not disastrous. Neither does it win pennants. Without Sadler, who must have the best hands outside of TV soap commercials, United would have been down there with the seaweed. "It wouldn't have been so bad," George Wright was saying, "if we hadn't lost Stothard. Those tight games we blew might have been different with Dave."

Dave Stothard scored 13 goals for United last year, 50 per cent more than any teammate. With him they won 11 out of 21, finished third.

Stothard is at University of Minnesota, taking a brushup course in business and how co-eds have changed. To add to Milligan's discomfiture, United lost Harold Holroyd and Len Anderson early. They have knees ripe for surgical splicing.
So stripped of bodies, Milligan, the mastermind, has been forced to resort to youth. His front line against Royals averaged 22 with Paul the sole vintage model. He's 27.

Last year when Milligan was asked why he didn't use youth more and old age less, his answer was succinct: "The lads are no ready, yet." Remarkable really how a year and a few loose knee cartilages can change lads into first-string

More remarkable than United's arrogant display of power was the attendance. A long look at the attendees proved they were dyed-in-the-cashmere soccer zealots. If it had been 38 degrees below with a 67-mph wind, they would

Their loyalty is unquestioned but the species is dwing. Last year United averaged 820 per contest. This year the home average is 604—down 25 per cent.

United Can Play—Cabinet Approves

What passes for weather in B.C. in November and December has contributed to the demise. But not nearly so much as soccer's indifferent approach to its customers or William Findler's approach to the league presidency.

Pacific Coast League soccer, specifically in Victoria, offers clients no programs, no halftime entertainment, no adequate catering facilities. The miracle of it all is not that only 41 people will pay under such conditions but that anybody will pay.

Findler has given the league a Mack Sennett image with crazy-quilt scheduling, cancelling and rescheduling.
Certain teams, among them Columbus, have elected not to play scheduled games and thoughtfully advised Findler beforehand. He usually lets the other team know. If he can.

A rather well-beaten joke around press boxes is that Mr. Firdler will announce what teams are playing next week "as soon as he talks with Mainardi." That is Peter Mainardi, president of Columbus and presumably member without portfolio in the PCSL cabinet. .

Apparently Mr. Mainardi and Mr. Findler reached a decision early this week. It has been announced that Columbias will that Victoria at Califater Pask on Sunday.

If Mr. Paul kicks the experts in the teeth by scoring a bag of goals and his mates behave accordingly, Mr. Milligan may make the return flight to Victoria by air . . . but not by plane. It doesn't take much to get this Scot high.

Not that the Giants had to be told much about the Steelers, who beat them 31-0 in September.

They meet again Sunday in a game that will decide the Eastern division champion, with the winner either Chicago Bears or Green Bay Packers from the Western Division for the NFL title.

A tie will win for the Giants. who would then be 10-3-1 to the Steelers' 7-3-4. Otherwise, if the Giants win the game they win the crown. Same for the Steelers. No other result is possible.

NHL's Player-Pugilists Shell Out $850 in Fines

One of the biggest changes that has developed in hockey in recent years is the practise of goaltenders going behind their nets to stop pucks that have been thrown in to carom around the boards.

I believe Jacques Plante first used this manoeuvre. At first he drew much criticism. He was called the wandering goalie. Perhaps he was a little too daring at first until he learned to judge when to go back to make the stop and when not to if there wasn't sufficient time to get back to protect

His manoeuvre made good sense. Before, the goalie just stood there and his teammates had the problem of picking up the puck alongside the boards while it was moving.

It's one of the toughest jobs in hockey. While you're looking down trying to make contact with the puck, pick it up, you're a prime target for a body check from an opponent.

Nowadays, stopping these roaming pucks is standard. practice for goalies. Then it is easy for his teammate to aither pick up the puck or pass it ahead.

The goalie has to be careful about moving out of the goal crease. That's the area extending four feet in front of the goal posts, and a foot to either side of them, marked off by red lines two inches in width.

The goal crease is for his protection. A goal will be disallowed or washed out if the referee finds an attacking player guilty of invading the goal crease or even putting his stick in the goal crease area before the puck gets there.

Once he's out of the goal crease, the goalie is just another hockey player and if he's carrying the puck, he can

However, it's risky to try to check him. If he gets the puck away first, the referee may find you guilty of inter-ference if you body him or prevent him from getting back TORONTO (CP)—A Toronto stock promoter pleaded guilty Monday to stock fraud charges involving $960,000. Dr. Charles Stuart, 36, currently serving a second six year sentence imposed last May for fraud, conspiracy and theft, was remanded to Dec. 13 for sentencing.

Stuart was convicted Monday of theft involving shares of Brilund Mines Limited in 1960. His current sentence for fraud, conspiracy and theft involved $300,000 in assets of Stadacona Mines (1944)

He was convicted with Montreal mining millionaire Roy Robertson, now serving five years, Montreal lawyer Andre Begin who received $2\frac{1}{2}$ years, and Toronto lawyer Henry Koury who served a $1\frac{1}{2}$ year sentence.

'SALLY ANN' KETTLES ON STREET WEDNESDAY

Familiar red Salvation Army Christmas coin-collecting kettles will be on downtown corners again Wednesday

Seven will be in operation Wednesday, and another four will go out as the pre-Christmas pace quickens.

Proceeds from the kettles go towards preparing Christ-mas food hampers for needy families — about 350 of them in the average year.

Anything left over is used for emergency winter relief work, says a Salvation Army spokesman

On an average of once a week, some earnest Canadian asks me whether I don't feel it's high time our country had a flag of her own.

I do indeed think she should, and propose that today we push the local scene to the back of the stove while we work out a flag design.

Since visibility and eye-appeal are important factors, I suggest we color the fly, or field, a rousing red. Most peo-ple like red, and children al-most without exception will choose the red lollipop from among the greens and yellows. Its crosses denote that we are a Christian people officially, at least—and it makes our affiliations plain at

This national flag we've pieced together is distinctive, brave and gay; everything we hoped it would be. It does have its faults, of course. Our native Indians aren't represented, and we seem to have omitted Canadians of numerous other racial ex-tractions. The Ukrainians,

Pass a flag act, say I, and mark its acceptance into Canadian law with a flag day, to be observed from one st to the other.

Then, when we have our flag, let us bring the fact home to our children. In this context, the Americans are wiser than we.

This Day Is a Milestone Everyone Should Remember Send

By J. ETHEL BRUCE

On Tuesday, Dec. 10, 15 years ago, the United Nations Orchids from Hawaii, gift signed the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, dedi Mr. and Mrs. G. Pearson cating itself in advancing the inherent and equal rights "of Honolulu, were worn by the all members of the human family."

Over the years the Declaration has exerted a growing influence upon nations and human relationships within nations. It is a milestone in human progress in that it opens vistas of freedom for those who have been the victims of discrimination because of years college training to because of years college to the progress of the principals at the Saturday afternoon wedding of Miss Sylvia Kathleen Newell and Robert John McNutt, in St. Mary's Church, Oak Bay. discrimination because of race, color, religion or sex.

The UN Declaration of Dec. 10, 1948, was not an imposed idea. It grew out of public demand.

In 1945, at the San Francisco conference, people of many nations rose to insist that human rights safeguards be written into the new United Nations' charter. They pressed for the creation of a commission of human rights. They insisted that peace, a fundamental objective of United Nations, could only be promoted through the actions of governments and nations prepared to uphold human rights.

The bride wore a blue wool

The Commission on Human Rights held its first session in February, 1947. Fifteen nations were represented in its membership. Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, delegate from the United States, was its first chairman. Months later, when brought to the UN General Assembly, the Declaration was passed without a single dissenting vote.

The Universal Declaration is not a law. It is not a treaty.

It merely sets out "a common standard of achievement for all peoples and all nations . ." In the matters of personal rights, economic rights, political and social rights and, finally, the wider field of all-embracing rights:

were allowed to play four spades; at other tables West bid five hearts; North and East passed and South went on to five spades which was usually doubled.
Of course, the diamond finesse worked

Free Estimate No Down Payment as GOP:38 RD. 69 6323 Now let's see what happened when East-West got their plus score. West had nothing to do with it. It was all East! It seems that after North bid two spades East decided that there would be further bidding and took the unusual action of passing with his big hand. Sure, enough, South went right to four spades and when that got back to East he went to five hearts. South passed. He wanted his partner to decide what to do and needless to say North doubled. He did not know that East had set a trap.

East had no trouble making five hearts. All he had

"Lonesome George" is planning to return to tele-vision in the role of an apartment house manager

Viewers have had specially conducted tours of next year. He should be well groomed for the role. White House, Monaco and Greece this year, so since Vancouver's Ramada Inn is one of his hostel-character. And of more importance, the show can be used as a vehicle for finding new characters, the way Fred Allen did. He finally found a group of running characters.

As "Wally" the apartment house manager, Gobel is a regular patsy for his tenants. As usual, Gobel is married in the series. His wife is played by Sue Anne Langdon, Gobel has always been married in his shows. He's one of the most married men on Like George Burns in the old "Burns and Allen" series, the pint-sized comedian will also have an opportunity to do a monologue, a form of humor in which he is adept.

If plans see fruition it will be a welcome addition to the television wars. He's always been one of this column's favorites.

SHORT CUTS: Barbara Stanwyck has been cast in a "Wagon Train" episode Lloyd Bridges and his son Beau will appear together in an episode of "The Eleventh Hour."

Archivist To Produce Old Treaty

NANAIMO (CP) - Provincial archivist Willard Ireland has been subpoenaed to appear in court here Wednesday with a copy of an 1854 treaty which the Hudson's Bay Com-pany purchased a portion of Vancouver Island for 668 blan-

Mr. Ireland was subpoenaed by Tom Berger, lawyer for two Nanaimo Indians appealing con-victions for having dead game in their possession out

Mr. Berger said it was legally necessary to subpoena Mr. Ireland in order to obtain the treaty from the archives.

He contends the treaty gave Indians the right to hunt freely at any time on the land. The treaty, which turned over 12 miles of land up the Nanai-mo River from Commercial Inlet, was negotiated and signed by Sir James Douglas, chief factor for Hudson's Bay Company and a governor of Van couver Island. It was signed by 159 Indian chiefs and men who placed an "x" on the docu-

L'ASSASSINO Murder In Italy

The confusion was the result of seeing Marcello Mastrioianni at the Odeon, Victoria, in one of his earlier films, "Divorce—Italian Style."

Then as now I was impressed by his superb drollery and subtle characterization. He is so delightfully natural it is hard to believe he is performing in front of a movie camera. And his expressions are so interpretive the subtliffer seem almost surreful.

Smoking is permitted in many French theatres and the Theatre Royale is one of them. Hence I saw "L'Assassino" through an aromatic blue haze which did not seem to affect one's view of the screen but committed something of an assault on the murder, but being questioned (and becoming questioned (and becoming progressively more scared and worried as damaging evidence is piled up against him) he begins to examine his past lite in a spirit of remorse.

You're in luck when you want to contact an out-of-town firm that lists a ZENITH number in the telephone directory.

You can make an enquiry, get a quotation or place an order as easily as if that firm were located across the street from you.

All you do is ask the Long Distance operator for the ZENITH number you Right away she'll connect you free of charge, no matter whether the firm you want is 40 miles away or 4,000.

You don't have to request a "collect" call. The firm you call automatically pays the toll charge.

Companies with a ZENITH number have made an extra special effort to cater to your convenience. For that reason they are usually good companies to do business with.

Remember with ZENITH it costs you nothing to call!

If you happen to be a business man yourself - and if you are located outside Vancouver - test ZENITH service right away. Merely ask your local operator for ZENITH 7000. That's the number of our Marketing and Sales Department, which will be glad to give you full information.

Fred Fieber, an MSA director and an official of the International Woodworkers of America (CLC), said that if a satisfacto schedule cannot be decided be ween MSA and the doctors then medicare may be the answer.

Charles Stewart of the Street Railwaymen's Union (CLC) warned doctor delegates not to "kill the goose that lays the golden egg." He said the proposed new fees would result in doctors doubling their incomes in 10 years.

"Government intervention Is standing on your doorsteps," warned Stu Hodgson, another labor delegate. "Stand up and justify yourselves."

Doctor delegates said the nigher fees are necessary.

Dr. E. F. Word said doctors in the United States are charging double the British Columbia fees and "we are faced with losing some of our better doc-tors" to the U.S.

Dr. W. G. McClure, a member of MSA's medical board, said doctors were "not seeking this increase for more money but to keep pace with a rising over-

TO BE MANNED

U.S. Plans Lab In Space

WASHINGTON (AP) Defence Secretary McNamara ordered the U.S. Air Force today to develop a manned military space laboratory that would start orbiting the earth in about four years.

McNamara announced the new project as he disclosed cancellation of another air force man-in-space glider called Dyna-Soar. (See story, Page 31.)

The defence secretary called a surprise press conference to announce the new military space approach.

He said the Manned Orbiting Laboratory program, coupled with other related research, will provide greater knowledge about man's capaeity for sustained life in space, at a saving of about $100,000,000. McNamara stressed that the new project is "an insurance program" to prepare the U.S. to send manned space warships aloft if the need should arise. He emphasized, as he before, that the need for such a military space mission is still not clear.

The Manned Orbiting Laboratory will consist of a pressurized cylinder about the size of a small house trailer. It will be able to accommodate more than one man

McNama said the intention is to attach the laboratory to a modified Gemini capsule and lift them into orbit with a giant Titan III rocket

Jewish Peer Reinstated By U.K. Firm

LONDON (CP) - A Jewish eer who was forced by Arab to resign his post on the board of directors of a British insurance company said to-day he is undecided whether he will accept a company offer to return to his job.

The reinstatement offer was announced today after Sir Barnett Janner, head of Britain's Jewish Board of Deputies, held a meeting with officials of the Norwich Union, the company

Lord Mancroft, the officer CAMBODIA who was forced to resign, said later he had just heard about 'REJOICES' what he would do.

A Norwich Union stateme released later confirmed the reinstatement offer and "absolutely refuted" any suggestion it intended to encourage the Arab boycott of Israel.

Janner described himself as "very satisfied" with the out-eome of the talks.

He said the insurance company proposed to continue and develop its business interests in Israel and other countries.

The British government Monday issued a strong rebuke to Arab envoys Monday. In effect, a trio of Arab ambassadors who had visited the foreign office to defend the Arab boy-cott of Israel movement were told to stop putting pressure

The move, announced in New York Monday by Stude Daler Corporation president a Byers Burlingame, sent production targets soaring at Studebaker's Hamilton plant.

Officials immediately began the task of enlarging existing facilities in preparation for a sharply stepped-up production

This would be more than triple the Canadian operation's recent average production rate of 8,000 cars annually.

"This will be the first truly Canadian automobile operation of its kind," Grundy said. "It will be staffed by its own research and design engineers and will be free to develop a distinctive Canadian car," h said.

FEAR DEALERSHIPS

The only shadow falling over the otherwise bright picture was a possibility raised by Robert Orr, director of marketing for the Canadian com-pany, that Studebaker might lose some of its dealerships in the U.S. until it had reached the output achieved by the South Bend plant.

"Some dealers might object to the reduced services which initially would follow the changeover of operations," he

He noted that at its lowest production rate the South Bend plant had an annual output of 65,000 autos.

Orr said that as well as sup-plying the U.S. market, Stude-baker would continue to export cars to Australia, Israel and

On an average of once a week, some earnest Canadian asks me whether I don't feel it's high time our country had a flag of her own.

I do indeed think she should, and propose that today we push the local scene to the back of the stove while we work out a flag design.

Since visibility and eye-appeal are important factors, I suggest we color the fly, or field, a rousing red. Most people like red, and children almost without exception will choose the red lottipop from among the greens and yellow And we do want to attract the be the flag they'll grow up years have thought, that it's a pretty good flag. Unfortunately, some one has worked it all out alread of us, and even given it a Ensign.

For myself, I think we should now end the "flag issue," that perennial conversation-piece, by firming the status of our Canadian Ensign.

It is not enough that a casual order-in-council per-mits the flying of the ensign from public buildings. I think the order should be rescinded, and that Canada should get her flag as a result of formal vote in the House of Commons

Canadian schools raise their flags too. But we seem to lack our neighbors' inpledge no allegiance.

I think we lose thereby. A country needs gauges of unity, symbols to home upon. Of these, Canada's first should be the national flag which she has been so STATELINE, Calif. — Millionaire Frank Sinatra distraught and sleepless, was reported today willing to make any deal to win release of his 19-year-old son from kidnappers.

A spokesman brought out the word while a twoday manhunt spread and fears mounted for the safety of Frank Sinatra, Jr., abducted in the Lake Tahoe snow country.

"Frank is willing to make any deal with no ques-tions asked," said the spokesman, Jim Mahoney, Sinatra's press agent.

The FBI today clamped silence on the huge search "until something happens. Meanwhile FBI agents today checked the mails for a possible rensom demand for Sinatra, kidnapped from his motel room at this Lake Taboe gambling centre Sunday night.

Authorities theorized that a ransom note mailed Monday would show up today for de-livery. They were checking incoming mail at Lake Tahoe and at Reno, where the missing youth's father waited anxi-ously in a hotel.

Growing concern for young Sinatra's safety was expressed by Sheriff Ernest Carlson of El Dorado County, Calif. Asked

U.S. Plans Lab In Space

WASHINGTON (AP)-Defence Secretary McNamara ordered the U.S. Air Force today to develop a manned military space laboratory that would start orbiting the earth in about four years.

McNamara announced the new project as he disclosed cancellation of another air force man-in-space glider called Dyna-Soar. (See story, Page 31.)

The defence secretary called a surprise press conference to announce the new military space approach.

He said the Manned Orbiting Laboratory program, coupled with other related research, will provide greater knowledge about man's capacity for sustained life in space, at a saving of about $100,000,000, McNamara stressed that the new project is."an insurance program" to prepare the U.S. to send manned space warships aloft if need should arise. He emphasized, as he has before, that the need for such a military space mission is still not clear.

The Manned Orbiting Eabora-tory will consist of a pressurized cyltrailer. It will be able to accommodate more than one man.

McNama said the intention is to attach the laboratory to a modified Gemini capsule and lift them into orbit with a giant Titan III rocket

For a time he paid out double, just as he promised. The take snowballed to £20,000 a week. Then the payout stopped. Disgruntled dupes started arriving at Bailey's London ce. He switched operations to Grimsby, on the north-

The beitors followed him. Bailey hired a six-man strong-arm gang to protect him.

Next, he moved to Liverpool and started the whole operation again with 37-year-old Thomas Corrigan as front man.

Again the money poured in.

Then Bailey's bodyguards demanded a bigger cut. He wouldn't give it. One tipped off the police.

At Nottingham assize court Bailey was convicted on nine charges of false pretences, conspiracy and fraud. Corrigan pleaded guilty to conspiracy and was jailed for 18
